A FAMILY CONCERN

Decorating the Christmas tree is a family affair for the William Woods family, of 242 Taylor Cresc., Kelowna. Everyone gathers around the tree to fasten lights, bulbs and tinsel. At work, from top left, counterclockwise, are Tom, Mrs. Wood, Sandy, Debbie and Mr. Wood. Like other Kelowna families, the Woods are preparing for the traditional Christmas event, when Santa will drop down on Kelowna Christmas Eve and leave behind presents for Kelowna residents.—(Courier Photo)

PGE Northbound For $17 Million

VANCOUVER (CP)—Premier W. A. C. Bennett announced Monday that the British Columbia government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway will call tenders for construction of 100 miles of new line north of Takla Lake, 450 miles northwest of Vancouver.

Cost of the extension will be about $17 million, the premier said following a meeting with the PGE board of directors. Mr. Bennett is president and chairman of the railway.

He said his objective is not only to open up the rugged wilderness country, but also to increase employment.

Asked if the latest step in the PGE's northward march is another hint that he would like the Yukon to join B.C., Mr. Bennett said:

"I've withdrawn that offer."

He said the offer was withdrawn at the last federal-provincial conference when Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau displayed a map of Canada that showed the Yukon separate from B.C.

The premier said Mr. Trudeau pointedly explained that the map showed the province's true size and place in Canada.

"Then I withdraw the offer," Mr. Bennett said.

At an earlier conference in Ottawa, the premier had presented a map on which B.C. took in the Yukon and part of the western Northwest Territories.

The enlarged province would have been one of five new regions replacing the present 10 provinces.

NORTHWEST PUSH

Mr. Bennett said the PGE now has been extended north-west of Prince George into Fort St. James and construction is under way to Takla Lake, 78 miles northwest. This section is to be completed in early spring.

The latest northwest extension will take the line to within about 140 miles of Dease Lake, ultimate destination of the line, and 75 miles south of the B.C.-Yukon border.

Mr. Bennett predicted the Dease Lake terminus will be completed in 1974.

He also announced that the board had confirmed an increase in PGE pensions, both for those now retired and for employees who contribute to the voluntary pension plan.

Company officials said the increase will be about 20 per cent.

Sweep Winners To Take Trip

TORONTO (CP) — Bob and Bessie Jacobs, winners of a $485,000 Irish sweepstakes draw Monday, have decided to fly to Florida for a New Year's holiday.

It will be the first airplane flight for Mr. and Mrs. Jacobs. Brian, 15, Bob Jr., 20, married daughter Cathy and Cathy's year-old daughter, Vicky, Bob Jr.'s girl friend and her parents are going as guests.

"At first I thought what an expense it will be taking nine people to Florida," said Mrs. Jacobs. "Then I realized it's only a drop in the bucket."

The windfall was a new prize that goes to the holders of the first ticket drawn in the Irish Hospitals Trust sweepstakes. The money is tax free and because this draw has nothing to do with the race itself, there's no need to hold a winning horse.

Mr. Jacobs has taken time off from his $19-a-week linotype operator's job. His wife works at a $54-a-week office job.

Politicians Move In U.S. For Youth Vote

WASHINGTON (AP) — Youth-oriented political groups moved quickly today to grab a share of the potential 11 million new voters in the United States enfranchised by the Supreme Court decision allowing 18-year-olds to vote for president and congressmen.

The Young Republican national chairman, Ron Romans, said his organization has a national registration program on paper and a pilot program under way in two states to computerize the names of 18- to 21-year-olds for a sign-up drive.

The National Young Democrats said it was joining with other youth groups in a campaign "to register those millions whose vote can bring about social change, re-ordering of national priorities and increased support for their point of view."

Nixon Raises Oil Inflow

WASHINGTON (CP) — President Nixon issued Tuesday a proclamation increasing 1971 oil imports by some 100,000 barrels a day, much of it from Canada.

The proclamation made a series of adjustments in oil import regulations which have been in effect since 1959.

From the Canadian view, much of the proclamation was somewhat anti-climatic in that greater oil imports from Canada in 1971 had been announced earlier at the United States-Canada ministerial meeting in Ottawa last month and in Nixon's Dec. 4 speech in New York on the U.S. economy.

George A. Lincoln, director of the Office of Emergency Preparedness, said Tuesday that imports from Canada, now limited to 395,000 barrels a day, would be increased by 55,000 barrels to a new authorized rate of 450,000 barrels.

Nurses Face Night Threat

VANCOUVER (CP)—A study commissioned two months after a Vancouver nurse was stabbed to death as she walked home from work has recommended better street lighting around hospitals and subsidized transportation for hospital employees.

The murder of Myrna Louise Inglis, 26, in September, 1969 is still unsolved. Her death resulted in an outcry for protection of women who must work at night.

The report, released Monday, was sponsored by the Registered Nurses Association of British Columbia, the B.C. Hospital Association, the Hospital Employees Union and the Psychiatric Nurses Association.

Plight Of Unpaid Jobless Protested At UIC Office

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 50 unionists turned out for a demonstration Monday at the Unemployment Insurance Commission office here to protest the high rate of unemployment among British Columbia tradesmen.

The demonstration was organized by the 3,100-member Carpenters' Union. Over 600 of its members are jobless.

"What we are particularly concerned about is the high number of unemployed tradesmen who do not qualify for unemployment benefits," said a

Carpenters' Union official who joined the pickets.

He said many tradesmen have been forced to seek welfare because they did not have the required number of unemployment stamps. The stamps represent previous unemployment insurance payments deducted while employed.

He blamed the shortage of stamps in B.C. on the high unemployment rate throughout the province this year as a result of either strikes and lockouts or the federal government's fight against inflation.

The spokesman said the federal government's attempt to solve this problem by giving out special seasonal benefits was appreciated but that it was not enough.

"We still feel that a large number of employable workers in this province are not benefiting," he said.

"We have a union dispatch service in our union. Our members call in after they have completed a job and put their names up for their next job."

"We know that 20 per cent of our members are now seeking work and that there is none available for them. We also know that the real unemployment figure is higher in our union—possibly as high as 25 per cent—because many members realize the frustrating situation and don't bother to sign up for future employment."

Unemployment among B.C. tradesmen is estimated at about 20 per cent. The actual B.C. unemployment rate is near nine per cent.

Some of B.C.'s largest unions have followed the B.C. Federation of Labor proposal during its annual convention this fall and have organized unemployment committees at the local levels.

Economy Sinks Into Morass, Says Stanfield Rapping Grits

OTTAWA (CP) — Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said today the government has plunged Canada into an "economic morass" and raised the "horrible prospect" of little or no improvement in the unemployment situation.

He said at a news conference that not only has the government allowed hard-core unemployment to increase, it also permitted the "new and terrifying phenomenon" of increasing unemployment among young people.

The Conservative leader said he and his party will concentrate in 1971 on trying to persuade the government to stimulate the economy.

Behind the "smooth words and sugar face" of the government lies the reality of an economic mess, Mr. Stanfield said.

He had suggested a year ago the government was running down the economy too much in its avowed fight against inflation.

But nearly everybody, including the press, had swallowed the government position hook, line and sinker.

It was difficult to contemplate another year or more of the current unemployment situation.

On other topics, Mr. Stanfield said:

—He will do his best to persuade retiring Ontario Premier John Roberts to enter federal politics.

—The Trudeau government was trying to force Quebec to vote federal Liberal or separatist Parti Quebecois. This was why it was so important for the Conservatives to offer Quebec a no other federal option and "boy, you better pray we succeed."

LIST OF DEAD GROWS

A Place To Avoid Right Now

MIAMI (Reuter) — The Bermuda Triangle, a mysterious zone in which boats and planes have disappeared over the years, may have claimed six more victims.

The U.S. Coast Guard reported that six planes, two cutters and three smaller boats have been coming in 30,000 square miles of ocean, mostly along the Bahamas chain, for a light plane and a cabin cruiser.

The boat, Jiffie Dan, left Miami Nov. 15 for Andros Island, Bahamas. Aboard were the owner, Ed Houliard, 45, of Key Largo, his wife, Billie Jean, 42, and possibly another passenger.

The light plane left West Palm Beach airport Nov. 23 for Jamaica. Aboard were the pilot, George Griffin, and Mike Williams and Ray Dickerson, all Americans.

The Bermuda Triangle, the triangular area contained within an area bounded by Miami, Bermuda and Puerto Rico, has already claimed more than 120 victims.

The mysterious forces in the zone that baffles navigators and weathermen first received notice when, on Dec. 5, 1945, six U.S. Navy planes with 27 men flew out of Fort Lauderdale and vanished without trace.

An unusual number of disappearances have occurred in the weeks before Christmas.

In December, 1948, a DC-3 with 32 passengers disappeared in the area. A year later, a plane with 21 aboard vanished between Bermuda and Jamaica.

In December, 1957, a racing yacht carrying a publisher and his family vanished between Key West and Miami.

In December, 1963, a DC-3 airliner with 35 aboard disappeared between San Juan and Miami.

In December, 1967, a cabin cruiser containing a hotel man and a Roman Catholic priest vanished almost within sight of Miami.

MYSTERY OF THE SEA

In no case was wreckage ever found and no emergency radio signals were sent out. Veteran aviators say there is a dead spot in the zone where radio communication is virtually impossible.

One of the few messages received from a navigator on one of the navy planes that vanished in 1945 said merely: "We don't know our position... we don't know where we are."

Many theories have been advanced. Most blame freakish weather conditions.

Bill Verity, a Fort Lauderdale builder, was caught in the Bermuda Triangle just over a year ago while crossing the Atlantic in a 20-foot wooden boat.

He reported later that "I was peppered all the time by huge bolts of lightning."

"Never seen anything like it. You could smell the ozone as they hit the water. I was scared to death."

China Warns Of 'Turmoil' Following Kremlin Move

HONG KONG (Reuter) — China accused Russia today of sending troops into Poland to help crush workers' riots and warned the Kremlin that intervention could stir up turmoil in the west of Eastern Europe.

The Chinese statement published by the official People's Daily was Peking's first comment on the week of trouble in Poland's Baltic ports and Sunday's resignation of party chief Wladyslaw Gomulka.

China's Communist party newspaper described Poland under the Gomulka government and Czechoslovakia and other East European states as "powder kegs that can explode at any time."

The People's Daily attack represented China's strongest blast in recent months in the simmering war of words between Moscow and Peking.

It came at a time when both countries have made moves to normalize their bitter relations—a recent exchange of ambassadors for the first time in four years and a joint announcement three days ago that both sides had signed a protocol on shipping along the rivers forming their common border, scene of armed clashes last year.

Peking, which branded the Soviet-led invasion of Czechoslovakia in 1968 as a "monstrous crime" committed by a "pack of bandits," also has been mending fences with Warsaw pact states. It has sent a number of envoys to East European capitals to fill posts left empty during the Cultural Revolution.

The People's Daily jumped back into the attack by claiming that the Polish outbursts were a clear sign of the "crisis of colonialist rule in East Europe."

The article accused Gomulka of being "counter-revolutionary" and denounced his successor, Edward Giersek, for making empty promises.

"The new party secretary of Poland in his first televised speech had openly expressed the wish to forge ahead together with Soviet revisionism," the People's Daily said.

"He made empty promises in an attempt to cheat people.... His statement concealed his intention to slaughter the workers and suppress the people."

Court Downgrades Tucson Fire Case

TUCSON, Ariz. (Reuter) — A juvenile court downgraded Monday prepared charges of suspicion of murder and arson against a teen-age boy after police said they had insufficient proof in connection with a hotel blaze that killed 28 persons Sunday.

Court officials said charges of trespassing and curfew violation were later filed against 16-year-old Louis Taylor, arrested Sunday morning on the fourth floor of the burning Pioneer International Hotel.

Paul Charter, director of court services for the juvenile court, said his office prepared the original petitions, based on information from the police department, alleging that Taylor was a delinquent child by reason of suspected arson and felony murder, resulting from the arson.

Subsequent reports from the police department, Charter said, indicated that they did not have sufficient evidence to prove arson did take place—or that Taylor was responsible if it did.

Charter said the youth was being held in custody "in the best interest of the public and the child."

Taylor said he was in the hotel trying to help rescue guests.

A Tucson city ordinance forbids juveniles under the age of 16 from being on the streets after 10 p.m. unless they are on their way to a social event.

Taylor was sent away four times to the state industrial school and once was committed to the state mental hospital. He was officially released from hospital Dec. 2.

Ex-SS Chief Convicted

DUESSELDORF (AP) — Franz Stangl, the SS commander of Hitler's Treblinka death camp in Poland, was convicted by a West German war crimes court today of the murder of hundreds of thousands of Jews and sentenced to life imprisonment.

Stangl, now 62, who ran Treblinka in 1942-43, was arrested in Brazil in 1967. Simon Wiesenthal, director of the Vienna Jewish documentation centre and the man who tracked down Adolf Eichmann, had placed Stangl third on the list of wanted Nazi war criminals after Eichmann's execution in Israel. The first two, Hitler's deputy Martin Bormann and Gestapo chief Heinrich Mueller, still have not been accounted for.

GEORGE MCILRAITH... successor named too

Minister Resigns

OTTAWA (CP) — Solicitor-General George McIlraith resigned from the cabinet today for personal reasons and Prime Minister Trudeau announced that he will be replaced by Jean Pierre Goyer, MP for Montreal-Dollard.

There was no immediate indication whether the 62-year-old MP for Ottawa Centre would remain as a private member of the Commons. There had been speculation that he would be appointed to the Senate when he left the cabinet.

Mr. McIlraith, who suffers from a vision impairment, recently underwent two eye operations. Not long ago, his 21-year-old son was seriously injured in a car accident near London, Ont.

They'll Work Christmas Day

Not everyone will be able to sit back, relax and enjoy Christmas dinners.

For some, it will be another working day.

Those handling essential services in Kelowna find Christmas busier than most days.

For those who are away from families, Christmas is the loneliest day of the year.

Christmas Day is "business as usual" for the RCMP, who have 15 men on duty on three shifts.

With drinking drivers and holiday traffic, Christmas is usually a hectic day for policemen.

However, those who work Christmas have the chance to get home to families New Year's.

Fire Chief C. A. Pettman says eight men will work Christmas, with four men per shift.

ON CALL
The entire brigade will be on call Christmas Day, he added.

Since births, deaths and illnesses do not take holidays during Christmas, neither does the Kelowna General Hospital staff.

Doctors, nurses, orderlies and housekeepers will be either on duty or on call, with the bulk of 150 staffers working during the day.

X-ray and laboratory technicians, with doctors, will be on call throughout the holiday period.

The transportation industry will be working as usual, but on skeleton schedules.

Pacific Western Airlines has two flights Christmas Day, one each for eastbound and westbound passengers.

PWA and Kelowna Airport personnel will keep skeleton staffs on duty to service aircraft and passengers, as well as maintain aviation service.

Kamloops Radio Station Upset By Council Ruling

The Kelowna parks and recreation commission will rebut a statement by Kamloops radio station CFJC saying city council blocked efforts for CFJC to broadcast five hockey games.

K. K. Maltman, recreation director, said "some facts presented in the statement are slanted and not correct."

He added the arena advisory committee recommended to the commission, which in turn recommended to council CFJC pay $50 in advance to broadcast five games from Kelowna.

Mr. Maltman said the $10 fee per game was considered a token fee for preparations for radio by arena staff.

Kelowna Mayor Hilbert Roth said when council passed the recommendation, "council did not feel it set a precedent."

In the release, CFJC news director Walter Jones said city council blocked the station's efforts to broadcast games from Kelowna.

"CFJC made known its intentions to the Kelowna recreation commission Aug. 27 of this year, and only now, after four months of negotiation received final word."

"Under conditions of an agreement put forth by the Kelowna city council, a nominal game fee would be charged for use of the arena facilities, and at the same time, a financial report showing revenues and expenses incurred in doing these broadcasts must be presented to Kelowna.

"This station wishes to point out the fee requested is insignificant, but we would question the principle inasmuch as the precedent will have been established."

"So far no other city in the league has indicated similar policy—exemplified by our recent broadcast from Penticton and a scheduled broadcast from Vernon."

"We are leaving the door open for further negotiation, but will not broadcast this Saturday's game from Kelowna."

"It is CFJC's contention that broadcasting junior hockey games not only provides the fans with a service, but assists the individual club in particular and the league in general."

The move by Kelowna city council is, in our opinion, a crippling shot at the B.C. Junior Hockey League."

Greyhound Bus Lines will be operating on a normal schedule. Hotels and motels will be open and keeping staffs on duty.

Most dining rooms will be open, as more Kelowna residents enjoy having someone else prepare their turkey dinner.

Telephone operators will be the busiest people during the holiday period, aiding thousands who call friends and relatives.

Sixty-five operators will handle the switchboards Christmas day, in four and one-half hour shifts.

To aid operators the public is asked to make person-to-person calls early or late, or spread them over several days.

Using direct-dialing will aid operators.

Taxi firms will be operating as usual, transporting customers in Kelowna and district.

POLICE TIP
Police strongly urge drinking drivers to utilize cab facilities rather than risk driving while impaired.

Like doctors, Kelowna's pharmacists will be on call Christmas Day.

Meanwhile, department of highways and city crews will be on standby should emergencies exist.

A highways spokesman said while the department attempts to give its personnel Christmas and Boxing Day off, should the weather become "miserable" crews are called out on a shift basis to maintain roads.

E. F. Lawrence, city director of operations, said public works, waterworks, electrical works and sewage treatment personnel will also be on call.

J. H. Needham, assistant postmaster, said no one would work Christmas; two men will be on duty Boxing Day to dispatch mail for delivery Dec. 28.

Operations will be normal in the post office until Dec. 31, when operations will cease again until Jan. 1, when two men will sort mail for delivery Jan. 4.

Then, there is a man who has a genuinely frantic time during Christmas.

He works through the night, especially for children.

Five Task Groups Eye Area's Aquatic

Following is the second newsletter issued by A. M. Thomson, study director of the $2,000,000 Canada-British Columbia Okanagan basin water study, now being conducted by five task groups appointed by the Okanagan study committee.

In the first report, Mr. Thomson covered some planning required to develop a program for the study. He now acquaints readers with limnology, or the lake environmental part of the study.

"These limnology studies are being directed through the freshwater institute of the fisheries research board of Canada, located on the campus of the University of Manitoba in Winnipeg. The FRB staff member who will be most involved in these studies is Dr. John Stockner. He and his field staff will be working out of the study office in Penticton during the next two years. Staff of the Canada centre for inland waters of Burlington, Ont., will carry out some detailed task studies relating to circulation and chemical transport in the lake waters. These include Dr. Jack Blanton, Dr. Abe Lerman and Dr. Rich

Thomas. Canada Centre is the federal organization set up to study the pollution problems in the Great Lakes. Another group which will be involved in tasks related to fish populations is the provincial fish and wildlife branch.

DESCRIPTION

"Limnology is defined as the scientific study of physical, chemical, meteorological and biological conditions in fresh water. Four other terms frequently used in lake studies are 'trophic state', 'nutrients', 'plankton' and 'algae'.

"Trophic refers to the state of biological productivity. Lakes with a very low production are called 'oligotrophic', while lakes with a high biological production are termed 'eutrophic'. Lakes intermediate between these two stages are 'mesotrophic'.

"Oligotrophic lakes are usually clear and often cold. They provide high quality waters for domestic use and are pleasant waters to swim in. On the other hand they are not productive for sport fishing. Eutrophic lakes produce large quantities of troublesome and sometimes noxious algae. At this end of the scale lakes seldom produce good sport fish because other more sluggish types, such as carp and suckers, find conditions more suitable.

PLANT GROWTH

"Chemicals, such as nitrogen and phosphorus, which promote plant growth in the water, are called 'nutrients'. This term is comparable to artificial fertilizers used in agriculture to promote plant growth on land. The word 'plankton' is used to describe all the forms of free-floating microscopic plants and animals throughout the water of a lake and it often serves as a basic source of food for larger animals. Algae includes minute forms of plant life and in some more advanced forms, seaweeds. These tiny plant forms which are suspended in the water, contain chlorophyll, just as the leaves on land plants do, and require sunlight to manufacture food for growth and reproduction.

"The lakes in the Okanagan were formed many thousands of years ago by glaciers and remoulded during more recent glacial periods. At one time, glacial activity blocked the valley so Okanagan Lake drained northward into the Thompson River system. These glaciers gouged impressive rock basins at low elevations, the deepest point in Okanagan Lake being about 800 feet. Most glacial lakes, such as the Okanagan are oligotrophic (low biological productivity) at the time of their formation, and may remain essentially unchanged for many thousands of years. In a report prepared for the fisheries research board in the 1930s, Okanagan Lake was still considered ultra-oligotrophic.

"As these lakes fill with sediments carried down by streams flowing into the lake, the tendency is for the lake to become more productive (eutrophic).

SLOW PROCESS

"This process, the aging or eutrophication of lakes, is normally a slow process. Biological productivity, however, is easily accelerated by man. Discharges of waste effluent from urban centres and industries, and run-off and drainage from agricultural lands, all contribute nutrients, which may greatly increase biological production. The changes in a lake's environment from a nutrient-poor to a nutrient-rich state will also affect all the living communities within the lake.

"Some objectives of the limnology program, therefore, are to determine the present trophic state, or productivity of each lake; the populations associated with this state; the availability of nutrients that may be limiting productivity; and the rate of input of nutrients to the lake system. Also of importance in these studies are the physical factors (sunlight, temperature and currents) which affect plankton population growth and distribution in the water as well as the relative abundance of major sport fish. The data obtained from these studies will be used to evaluate the existing trophic state of the lakes and the probable future conditions under a range of management alternatives.

15 TASKS

"This program of studies has been broken down into 15 different task assignments, six of which were initiated in 1970. Four of these initial studies were primarily to obtain preliminary data from which a more detailed study program could be evolved for 1971-72. The biggest part of the limnology data collection program is scheduled for 1971 and will involve 14 different studies. I hope to have those persons actually involved in the limnology field program next year prepare a description of the work they are doing for inclusion as a future newsletter," Mr. Thomson said.

THIS COULD BE FATAL

Every winter dozens of older Canadians suffer heart attacks while shovelling snow. Safety officials say it's only common sense for people who get little regular exercise to avoid scenes such as this. Already this winter one prominent Penticton resident has died after suffering a heart attack while removing snow. Even a small fall of light snow can be fatal for older people in poor physical condition. (Courier photo)

SEEN and HEARD

Several Kelowna Liberals were in Ottawa during the past weekend attending a three-day Liberal Party policy convention, which was addressed by Prime Minister Trudeau. The Kelowna delegation included Les Wilson, David Dunn, Roger Tait and Sonja Prokosh. Okanagan - Boundary MP, Bruce Howard was also in attendance and addressed the convention.

The earlier the call the better the service, is the advice of Okanagan Telephone Company, which has a switchboard force of 65 operators at the ready for the yearly Yuletide telephone panic. The company advises contacting relatives and friends ahead of Christmas and New Year's Day to avoid disappointment and delay. Direct dialing is also another way to bridge the frustration gap, telephone company officials emphasize. Less than 50 per cent of Christmas Day calls got through last year.

It may be hard on the old back, but clearing snow from the vicinity of mailboxes in rural regions can speed mail delivery. Heavy snow on sidewalks and steps in the city can also impede mailmen, and each time a mail truck becomes stuck a large volume of mail is delayed.

Today is the final day of classes for 11,000 students in School District 23 (Kelowna) while British Columbia Vocational (Kelowna) students complete classes Wednesday. Okanagan Regional College students completed classes and examinations Friday. Activities for all return to normal Jan. 4. Students in school district 23 and the vocational school enjoy a 10-day break from classes, college students have two weeks.

Beautiful British Columbia, the slick B.C. government promotion magazine, appears to be increasing in popularity. Published quarterly, the highly praised periodical can be purchased through subscription sold at the offices of the Daily Courier. A check of figures show subscriptions sold at the Courier office totalled 163 in the past year, compared with 112 in 1969.

A former Kelowna man has been elected president of the Vernon and District Chamber of Commerce. Joe Keenan, popular owner-manager of the Royal Anne Hotel in the mid-1950s, was named to the top post late last week.

There are several dates in 1971 of interest to astronomers. There will be five eclipses, three of the sun and two of the moon, but only one will be visible in this area, depending on cloud cover. If skies are clear a total eclipse of the moon is due to be seen in all parts of North America Feb. 10.

We've had two more examples of people who are perfectly named for their jobs. An item last week told of the B.C. College of Dental Surgeons seeking a fee increase. The college president is named Dr. Freese. The second was the results of a weekend bird count, conducted by the Central Okanagan Naturalists Club. The item was compiled by a Mr. Falconer.

Sweetheart Day Nears

The annual Kelowna Teen Town snowflake fantasy will be held at Capri Dec. 30.

The winter pageant is the culminating event for six beautiful candidates, one of whom will be crowned Teen Town Sweetheart by current Teen Town royalty, Karen McKinley, at a formal ball at 9 p.m. This year's sweetheart runner-up will accept her crown from 1969 runner-up Barbara Mearns. Ranging in age from 16 to 18 years, the candidates were judged on poise, personality, speech and physical charm at a Dec. 8 fashion show at the Capri, and will be crowned and evaluated again at a closed coffee party at the Kelowna Yacht Club Dec. 20.

Competing for the 1970 sweetheart crown are: Elizabeth Robertson 16, Sheila Murphy 17, Elaine Cole 18, Patricia Lemire 16, Donna Mae Hamilton 16 and Trudy Walker 17.

The snowflake semi-formal banquet begins at 6 p.m., and tickets will be available at the door.

TWO ACCIDENTS

About $2,500 damages and no injuries were incurred in an accident at Bernard Avenue and Ellis Street Sunday at 12:20 p.m. involving Harvey George Jeckel of Kelowna. A mishap at the intersection of Sutherland Avenue and Ethel Street caused about $200 damages and no injuries to Rex McKenzie and "on the spot" of Kelowna. The accident was reported at 2 a.m. Monday.

Short Takes

It's December. Still it is not a news item really that the ducks are still with us, or about fifty Canada Geese, or a pair, three or ten swans. However we haven't seen the herons so far this year. A little more newsworthy is that we saw three robins on our lawn a couple of days ago. And within half an hour a pair of flickers, more commonly here called woodpeckers. Can spring be far behind?

And speaking of winter, Monday was the shortest day of the year. Haven't you noticed today was longer?

It's stylish in some specialized professions of work to take a professional name. Actors, writers, singers, wrestlers, hairdressers and others resort freely to pseudonyms and it's only a question of time until the fashion spreads into other fields of endeavor. But the styles will have to be chosen with care. Medical doctors, for instance, never should take the stage names considered fashionable among wrestlers. Who'd want to have his tonsils extracted by anyone called "The Mangler"? Athletes, however versatile, should shy away from the fluffy, pink atmosphere of the beauty salon. Mr. Bobby, Mr. Sonny, Mr. Gordie, Mr. Willie or Mr. Angelo wouldn't seem quite right on the ice, diamonds and fields. Politicians, however, needn't give their nicknames a thought. The voters never fail to think of choice names to call their political leaders. And that makes us wonder if the kids today have choice names for their teachers as our generation did when it went to school.

Nowadays, any young man who does not choose to study or to work, grows a beard, insults the gods and calls himself a cynic. Roman Emperor Julian said that in 350 A.D.

"The mechanism of the human heart, when you understand it, is like all the other works of nature, very beautiful, very wonderful, but very simple. When it does not work well, the fault is not in the machinery, but in the management."—The Canadian humorist T. S. (Sam Slick) Haliburton of Windsor, N.S.

And then there is the local chap who went to clean his teeth. He pulled and pulled to get his partial plate out—and finally found it sitting on the wash basin.

Papal Decision Logical

(Chatham News)

The rumor that Pope Paul intends to abdicate when he reaches the age of 75 is perfectly sensible, logical and fair.

He has recently published an edict demanding that cardinals who form, so to speak, the cabinet with which he governs his huge Roman Catholic following of 600 million people, should retire at the age of 80.

Most churches in the world are in turmoil and many of the beliefs and dogmas which have controlled these churches are rapidly falling before the onslaught of science and more modern ways of thinking.

The older elements in any church would, of course, object to innovations and demand that the Curia, or any other body governing the administration of these various religions conform to long accepted beliefs.

Education has had a lot to do with these alterations in the way the followers of the various religions and sects have attempted to revise age-old beliefs.

Blind faith has given way to reasoned acceptance of some of these tenets. Some of them have been totally rejected as they had no foundation in the actual historical past of these religions.

Some of the cardinals involved in this serious shake-up have made remarks less than charitable about His Holiness' actions. These actions, nonetheless, are perfectly logical and in step with modern thought.

Like many other things, a religion that stagnates and does not evolve is a religion with a serious problem for survival.

Many ideas which originated in the middle ages and caused their authors to be excommunicated or burned at the stake are now established facts.

Young people are proportionately more numerous than they were a few years ago and the religions of the world have to appeal to their more critical points of view.

"LESS HO AND MORE DOUGH"

Constituents May Decide About MPs' Pay Hike

OTTAWA (CP) — The question of whether members of Parliament receive a pay increase probably will be settled during the Christmas recess—by their constituents.

As they left Ottawa for a three-week Christmas holiday, MPs were unanimously predicting that constituency reaction to the proposed pay increases would decide whether the Commons will go ahead with recommendations that would provide basic salaries of $25,000.

The recommendations were handed down last week by a three-man committee of outsiders. The committee suggested, among other things, that the present basic salary of $12,000, plus a tax-free annual allowance of $6,000, be replaced with a taxable salary of $25,000.

While this would not provide a significant change in take-home pay, there would be other benefits for members in the form of housing allowances and expenses.

An overwhelming majority of the 264 MPs favor the increases—many have run into severe financial problems in maintaining two homes and meeting the unusual expense that goes with public office.

But any hope they might have had that the increases would slip quietly through the Commons was shattered when such formidable political figures as John Diefenbaker (PC—Prince Albert) and Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) indicated their outright opposition.

The reaction of Mr. Knowles was "one of horror."

There have been other scattered voices of dissent—all serving to draw attention to an issue which all MPs agree is delicate.

There is little doubt that most MPs need additional money but they acknowledge the difficulty of voting for a hefty raise—even though it's more apparent than real—at a time when the country is under a heavy siege of unemployment.

The problem is more acute for rural MPs, whose constituents would dearly like to live on the salaries their members now get.

RECESS WILL TELL

"The Christmas recess should tell the story," said one MP. "If we all come back here with a very bad reaction from our constituents, we can forget the whole thing for a while."

Another MP said he was prepared to argue the case with his constituents even though it was a low-salaried area.

"Perhaps it's time I showed some of these letters," he said, pointing to one from an organization in his riding that said it "would expect" a $500 donation from the MP.

"I am fed up with being overdrawn at two banks." The Christmas recess, while giving constituents an opportunity to express their views on the matter, will also allow some internal rancour to cool within the various political parties. Opposition to the increases has brought some bitter private comments from fellow party members.

"It's okay for Mr. Diefenbaker to talk," said one Conservative. "He's never had to maintain a large family and two homes."

An NDP member, reacting to Mr. Knowles' opposition, said, "not everyone likes eating crackers and milk."

But, in the end, it's the constituents who will decide the issue by saying what they think.

NEWS ANALYSIS

Portugal Still Has High Hopes

By PHILIP DEANE
Foreign Affairs Analyst

Despite the rising tide of guerrilla warfare in its African colonies, Portugal is trying to hold on, even though the cost is now absorbing 45 per cent of the country's budget. Portugal still dreams of great treasure pouring into the motherland from the colonies, as treasure poured in during the days of Vasco da Gama. Because of this dream, Portugal is ignoring the censures of the UN, implied criticism from the Pope and pressure from her African neighbors: this pressure is occasionally countered by mercenary attacks launched from Portuguese colonies.

Is there substance to the dream? Is there treasure? There is indeed. The Portuguese colonies are now the site of intense exploration by huge American-controlled multinational corporations. In Portugal's eyes, having these corporations does not only mean acquiring capital and technological skills but also giving the U.S. a financial stake in the maintenance of the Portuguese colonial empire. This is done quite consciously and is discussed openly by Portuguese experts in international affairs.

Another stake that is being given the U.S., in Portugal's view, is the possibility of establishing strategic bases (or ports of call) in the Portuguese African colonies. This is something that the Pentagon would certainly like—convenient ports of call are getting rarer.

Is the Portuguese dream realistic? The people in Lisbon believe it is, because the African states surrounding the Portuguese colonies are so weak and disorganized. It should take many decades before these African states acquire the technological capability necessary to tackle Portugal, even though Portugal is the poorest country in Europe. Russian and Chinese missions to Africa have not been successful in speeding up the entry of African countries into the twentieth century—these are the reasons why Portugal thinks it can hold on to its empire.

The dream could become a nightmare, however, because guerrilla warfare does not require a high level of technical sophistication. And technical sophistication does not give much of an edge in fighting guerrillas: using modern armaments against guerrillas is like using a sledge hammer to kill flies.

To this argument, the Portuguese answer that successful guerrilla movements reflect a national movement usually and the African population of their colonies is still tribal rather than nationalist; only a very small minority of educated Africans in the Portuguese colonies have become nationalists. Black racialism, however, could act as a sufficient substitute for nationalism.

Quotes From Official Minutes Of Staff Chiefs Made Public

LONDON (AP) — Ten months before D-Day, Allied military strategists discussed the possibility of repelling the Russians if they suddenly began overrunning Nazi Germany.

Gen. George C. Marshall, Second World War U.S. chief of staff, asked his British counterpart in August, 1943, if he thought Germany would help Allied troops enter Europe "to repel the Russians."

The quotation came from official minutes of the combined Chiefs of Staff which were made public Monday in London and Washington.

Sir Alan Brooke, British chief of staff, told Marshall he had been thinking along similar lines. He said, however, that Dr. Eduard Benes of Czechoslovakia did not think the Russians would try to sweep over Europe immediately.

The British marshal quoted Dr. Benes as believing Russia would be bled so badly by the war that it would need a few years to get its economy going again.

RUSSIANS DISTRUSTFUL

Marshall commented in a meeting of the chiefs of staff that Russia was turning an "increasingly hostile eye on the capitalist world." The Russians, he said, were becoming increasingly contemptuous of their Western allies.

Although minutes of the meeting did not background the reasons, apparently the Russian view resulted from Allied refusal to invade Europe as soon as Moscow would have liked.

The British chief of staff, while going along with Dr. Benes' view, told Marshall he expected Russia to ask for part of Poland, at least part of the Baltic states and for concessions in the Balkans.

Strategy was based on the belief that Russia would not declare war against Japan, or if it did, then it would be so late the result would be obvious.

The major part of the records of meetings of the Combined Chiefs of Staff, a total of 100,000 documents, was made public today by the British and American governments.

STRATEGY IN DISPUTE

Allied military leaders themselves fought running battles over strategy in Europe.

Time after time, the British sought to pull men and material out of the Pacific to strengthen the planned invasion of Europe but U.S. leaders stubbornly fought back—and won.

Gen. Henry (Hap) Arnold, then chief of the U.S. Army Air Corps, grew so incensed by poor will, he said.

U.S. bombing results from Britain to Europe that he threatened seven months before D-Day and World War U.S. chief of flow of bombers to Britain.

In a report to the Combined Chiefs of Staff in December 1943, Arnold said U.S. planes in other areas put 60 to 70 per cent of their available bombers into the air for operations. The percentage in Britain, he declared, was only 50 per cent.

"There's no reason why they shouldn't send 70 per cent," he added.

Marshall agreed. He said that unless U.S. bombers out of Britain came up to the results of U.S. daylight bombers around the world there was no need for any huge force in Britain.

Air Chief Marshal Sir Charles Portal of Britain criticized a U.S. proposal to install a supreme air commander in Europe and the Mediterranean. He told the Americans that either the Royal Air Force and the U.S. Air Corps should be led by a combined staff, or one service had to be subservient to the other.

Portal said he was not prepared to recommend that the RAF be under U.S. direction.

Artist Makes Creche Figures

The Christmas meeting of the University Women's Club of Kelowna was held recently at the home of Mrs. R. D. Knox. In anticipation of the special program arranged by the convener, Mabel Fraser, the president, Mrs. E. R. Kelly, and the members dealt quickly with the regular business matters.

It was confirmed that the club would sponsor a performance by the Western Dance Theatre early in the new year, and members were reminded to attend the Orion Trio in concert Monday evening.

The traditional Christmas collection was made, and will go this year to the Okanagan Neurological Society to assist in its valuable work.

After a short session of carol singing, Mrs. Jack McLennan introduced the guest speaker of the evening, Mrs. John Lamont, the well-known artist. With easily-available materials such as cardboard, tubing, heavy factory cotton or burlap, Mrs. Lamont showed how figures for a crib or creche could be made, inspiring even the least-talented among her audience to try her hand at an artistic effort for the Christmas season. Mrs. Lamont illustrated her ideas in greater detail with clever charcoal drawings, and described different styles of Creches, from roughly-carved or moulded wooden or ceramic figures to those finely executed, all in a variety of sizes.

The discussion of Christmas art continued during coffee and special Christmas desserts.

Valley Families United In Marriage In 100-Year-Old Ranch Home

An unusual, not to say a unique set of circumstances occurred at the recent wedding and reception of Trevor Arthur Dilworth of Westbank and Mica Creek, B.C., and Barbara May Bairstone of Penticton and Kelowna.

The quiet marriage ceremony was conducted at the century-old, Old Mill Ranch, Highway 97, Kelowna, by a great uncle of the groom, Rev. Everett S. Fleming. Following the signing of the register, the Minister had the pleasure of showing the newlyweds a marriage certificate made out on Dec. 12, 1859 to Samuel Fleming and his wife, Catherine Crittenden, who are great, great grandparents of the groom.

The bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bairstone of Penticton were present at both the marriage and the reception. The toast to the bride was given by an uncle of the bride, George Broderick of Penticton. The most extraordinary guests at the reception in the Elks Hall, Kelowna, was the presence of the great grandmother of the groom, Mrs. Stewart, who is a sprightly 95 years of age. She is the grandmother of Daphne, Mrs. William Dilworth, the mother of the groom. Besides all this a three-year-old niece of the groom, Teena Martin of Vernon turned out to be a great great granddaughter of the same Mrs. Stewart.

Coincidentally the marriage itself took place on the wedding anniversary of a great aunt of the groom, Mrs. Amy (Fleming) H. W. Timmins of Toronto who was present and sang several songs at the reception. The great uncle, Rev. E. S. Fleming, acted as emcee.

Heavy Petting Leads To Other Things

Dear Ann Landers: I am a 14-year-old girl who needs an answer right away. Please hurry because I have a date with this guy Saturday night. Is it true that heavy petting leads to breast cancer? Like I said, please hurry.—Terri H., Hurley, New Mexico.

Dear Terri: Heavy petting does not lead to breast cancer, but it CAN lead to other things. Cool it, Kiddo.

Dear Ann Landers: You're probably sick and tired of letters about that psychology professor who claims sex in marriage is not important. I'm enclosing a clipping from a news story out of London that should settle the controversy.

Two British scientists wrote in their book "Sixty Plus" that it is a grave mistake to allow their sexual love making to die away as couples get older. "If they continue to enjoy sex as long as they live," wrote the scientists, "they will be happier, more relaxed and healthier."

One of the authors, Dr. John Maddison is the founder of The Clinic For Preventive Medicine at Teddington. He wrote, "The wise men of India and China believed that regular sex activity was the key to eternal youth."

Dr. Maddison went on to prove his thesis by citing laboratory studies which showed that regularly mated rats remained in far better health than rats who were isolated from the opposite sex. Extensive interviews with patients revealed that married couples lost the ability to function sexually when they abstained for reasons of separation, illness or the notion that sex might be injurious to their health. So chalk one up for the old motto, "Use it or lose it."

I hope you'll print this, Ann. It might encourage some of the old gaffers who write to you.

Still Enjoying It At 78 In Kitchener, Ontario.
Dear Kitch: The old gaffers who write to me don't need encouragement. It's their wives who are writing to me—and this is what they're writing about. Thanks for your letter. I'm with those scientists from Old Blighty.

Dear Ann Landers: I wrote to you last month saying I thought my 16-year-old daughter was getting too friendly with a girl I was sure was a lesbian. You said unless I had more than a hunch to forget it because it is not unnatural for girls to be chummy at this age.

I have now in my possession letters from the other girl to my daughter which leave no room for doubt.

Should I confront my daughter with the evidence? Should I have a talk with the girl's parents? Would therapy help my daughter? She seems happy and perfectly normal in every way. To look at her you'd never suspect a thing. Please advise at once.—Texas Tenderhooks

You should, however, let her know you are aware of the relationship and that you are willing to provide her with professional help if she wants it. Show no anger or disgust and don't try to break up her friendship with the girl. It won't work. Moreover, it might build a wall which later might prove insurmountable.

ONE OF THE BIG REASONS

One of the big reasons for the Toronto Maple Leafs success of late in the Eastern Division of the National Hockey League, has been this fellow, Jacques Plante. Plante, traded to Leafs from St.

Louis during the off-season, has been outstanding in the Toronto nets, along with sidekick Bruce Gamble. The Leafs, unbeaten in the past six games, after two weekend victories over the Buffalo Sabres, which included Plante's 75th career shutout, sit in fifth place in the Eastern race, two points back of Vancouver Canucks, who visit Toronto for a four-pointer Wednesday.

MINNESOTA

Got Off To A Good Start And Didn't Stop Going

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

When the National Football League season opened last September, there was some suspicion that the Purple People were ready to be eaten.

Minnesota Vikings, 23-7 victims of Kansas City Chiefs in the preceding Super Bowl game, had to meet them again without Joe Kapp at quarterback and with Carl Eller, their all-pro defensive end, out of shape after reporting late to training camp.

The morning of the game, coach Bud Grant showed the Vikings the film of the Super Bowl rout, just to refresh their memory. In the afternoon, Minnesota thrashed the Chiefs 27-10.

That started the club off to its second consecutive 12-2 season, the best in the NFL and a ticket to a home date with San Francisco 49ers Sunday in the first round of the playoffs.

Dallas Cowboys entertain Detroit Lions Saturday in the other National Conference semi-final. In the American Conference, Cincinnati Bengals visit Baltimore Colts Saturday and Miami Dolphins tackle the Raiders at Oakland Sunday.

"When we started off the season beating the Chiefs it got us off to a good start," said Minnesota centre Mick Tingelhoff.

"We just want to work from there on."

The Viking defence held the opposition to an NFL low of 143 points, intercepting 28 passes along the way and the offence started its critics by scoring 335 points, the third-highest in the league. Place-kicker Fred Cox accounted for 125 of them, a league scoring record.

Kapp, who came to the Vikings after a contract dispute with British Columbia Lions of the Canadian League, left them under similar circumstances and suffered with the lowly Boston Patriots while Gary Cuozzo took over as No. 1 quarterback at Minnesota.

The 49ers, who had to go down to the wire to edge Los Angeles Rams for the West Division title, were too happy about gaining their first playoff berth in history to worry about the frigid midwestern weather. They played the Vikings in a snowstorm a year ago and lost 10-7.

"We'll just forget about the weather and play ball," said coach Dick Nolan, whose club compiled a 10-3-1 record. Like Kansas City, which failed to make the playoffs, the Cowboys have reason to be wary of an opponent intent on retribution.

The last time Detroit quarterback Greg Landry came to Dallas he was starting his first NFL game and the Lions were trampled 53-13. That was in 1968 and the Cowboys have no illusions that things will be the same Saturday.

GAINED EXPERIENCE

"He has that experience now and can recognize defenses," said Jerry Tubbs, their line-backer coach. "He knows what to do when his receiver is covered. He's the best running quarterback in the league."

Both clubs have 10-4 records, Dallas finishing with five consecutive victories for the East Division title while Detroit made the playoffs as the runner-up with the best won-lost mark.

Baltimore, 11-2-1, expects to have the injured Johnny Unitas back at quarterback against Cincinnati, 8-6, in a battle of American Conference division winners.

Miami, the AFC's top runner-up at 10-4, may face Oakland, 8-4-2, without defensive tackle Manny Fernandez, who has a shoulder separation. But the Dolphins barely missed their 250-pound lineman Sunday as they slaughtered Buffalo Bills 45-7 with quarterback Bob Griese continually varying his signal-calling cadence to draw his opponents offside.

Conc Don Shula is not counting on the gimmick to fool the Raider defence, which he calls "a tough, bump-and-run type that never gives you breathing room."

"They're always tight on receivers and really challenge you."

NHL STATISTICS

Bruins Led By Esposito Make Shambles Of NHL

MONTREAL (CP) — Phil Esposito and the Boston Bruins tradition are moving hand in hand.

Esposito, the National Hockey League's leading scorer, is averaging exactly two points a game after 32 games this season.

No player in NHL history has recorded that high an average this late in a season, and the ones closest to that mark in the past were all Boston players.

When Esposito, the Bruins' lanky centre, set the current record of 126 points in 1968-69, he averaged 1.70 points a game. In 1943-44, Herbie Cain of Boston won the scoring title with 82 points in 48 games, an average of 1.70.

Cooney Weiland, another Bruin, was the titlist in 1929-30 with 73 points in 43 contests, for an average of 1.66 points a game.

Esposito's total now is 30 goals and 34 assists for 64 points. He leads team-mate and all-star defenceman Bobby Orr by 14 points. Orr leads the league in assists with 38.

Another Bruin, right winger Ken Hodge, is third in the scoring race with 44 points, three more than another Boston right winger, John McKenzie.

Never in NHL history has a team had four players at the top of the scoring list, and the way the Bruins are scoring goals, they could be the first club to accomplish that feat.

Last week the Bruins stretched their winning streak to eight games, the longest by a Boston team since the 1938-39 season when that club won the last eight games of the regular schedule.

The Boston club record, which is also an NHL record, is 14 games set from Dec. 3 through Jan. 9, 1929-30. Later that same season the Bruins won 11 straight.

While the Bruins, with 147 goals in 32 games, are almost halfway to their record 303 goals set in 1968-69, they are having difficulty opening a big lead over second-place New York Rangers in the East Division race.

The Bruins have 49 points, two more than the Rangers. New York is staying close to the Bruins primarily on the defensive strength of the club. This is reflected by the goals-against average recorded by Ed Giacomin and Gilles Villemure.

ED GIACOMIN

who lead the goaltending race with a 1.93 average. Giacomin is the shutout leader with four.

Only one Ranger is in the top 21 scorers. He is centre Jean Ratelle with 35 points, including 17 goals. Ratelle is tied with John Bucyk of Boston for seventh place.

There are six Bruins among the leaders, the other being Wayne Cashman, who has 34 points.

Esposito, Hodge and Cashman are the league's top scoring line with 142 points and 57 goals. McKenzie, Bucyk and centre Fred Stanfield are the second-highest trio with 100 points and 41 goals.

Vancouver Canucks' line of Orland Kurtenbach, Murray Hall and Wayne Maki rates third in over-all league production with 97 points, including 39 goals.

May we drive home a point?

Winter driving, especially at holiday time, can be tricky. You keep your car in shape. You check your battery, tires, headlights and seat belts.

But how about yourself?

If toasting the holidays is part of the way you celebrate, enjoy your celebration, but enjoy it wisely. It's a good idea not to overeat. And the same goes for drinking.

At The House of Seagram, we've been driving home that point since our first Moderation message in 1934.

BARBARA SIMPSON

No Magic Formula For Improvement

TORONTO (CP) — Equestrian show jumping competition, long an obscure sport in Canada, got its first big shot in the arm when the country's Olympic team brought home gold medals from the 1968 Games.

The Canadians again won worldwide recognition for their strong performance this summer on a tour of five top-rated European horse shows. The tour was highlighted by the Nations' Cup victory at Le Baule, France.

One of the strongest Canadian performers in Europe and later on the North American circuit which concluded in November with the Royal Horse Show here was a Calgary girl who sees no magical formula for improving her competitive standing.

"Show jumping is just getting started here, but it's gaining in popularity," said 23-year-old Barbara Simpson in an interview during the Royal.

The efforts of Miss Simpson and team-mates Jim Elder, Moffat Dunlap and Torchy Millar, however, failed to prevent the strong West German squad from winning the team championship and thus completing a sweep of the four shows on the fall circuit.

TRAINING IS KEY

Gert Wiltfang, who was leading rider at the Royal after taking the same honors at the New York Horse Show two weeks earlier, claimed his team's superiority was based largely on the training the Germans give their horses.

"The 24-year-old German said his team's mounts receive intense schooling in dressage, which largely involves obedience training so that the horse will respond quickly to any command. This makes the horses easier to control in jumping competition.

But Miss Simpson said her horses, like those of her team-mates, also are schooled in dressage.

"Dr. Zoltan Szeleho, the Canadian dressage team instructor and a very good friend of our family, helps me every winter schooling my horses. That's all the training they get during the winter-dressage."

Does this mean the Canadian horses could be as well trained and capable as the German mounts?

Circumstances Remain Mystery Surrounding Laurentian Death

ST. JEROME, Que. (CP) — Police were unable to uncover the details surrounding the death last January of a 15-year-old Ottawa girl at a Laurentian Mountains ski resort remained a mystery today following an inquest which has been adjourned indefinitely.

Following testimony from about 20 witnesses during a seven-hour sitting that began Monday night, Coroner Vincent Drouin said in a summation that the only certain fact concerning the death of Linda Silverman was that she died of asphyxiation by strangulation.

Miss Silverman was reported missing last Jan. 3 during a ski weekend at St. Sauveur, 40 miles north of Montreal.

Her body was found the following day in a ditch about five miles from where she had last been seen alive at the foot of one of the ski hills in the town.

In an investigation, provincial police were unable to uncover the details surrounding the death and homicide department spokesmen suggested it might have been accidental.

By THE CANADIAN PRESS REMEMBER WHEN . . .

Canada's outstanding sports performer six years ago today—in 1961—was a horse. Sports writers and broadcasters chose Northern Dancer, E. P. Taylor's three-year-old colt, as athlete of the year before a leg injury forced the colt to retire to stud.

IRISH SWEEPSTAKES

Early Morning Phone Call Results In $486,000

TORONTO (CP) — About 175 Canadians held tickets drawn in the Irish Hospitals Sweepstakes Monday, including one automatically worth $486,000—the largest Irish sweeps prize since 1951.

Bob and Bessie Jacobs of Toronto were awakened Monday at 4 a.m. by a telephone call from Ireland telling them they had won the new "super prize" of $200,000.

It's tax free and they didn't have to have a winning horse. The rest of the Canadian ticket-holders are eligible for prizes in the Sweeps Hurdles to be run Dec. 28.

The largest sweeps jackpot is usually only $121,500 but for this race a super prize was added. "I can't believe it," said Mrs. Jacobs. "I just can't believe it."

The winning ticket was in her name.

The Jacobs have made no special plans for the money, but left for an unknown destination Monday afternoon to escape telephone calls.

Mr. Jacobs said earlier he did not know if he would leave his job as a printer.

Twelve Horses To Contest The Irish Sweeps Hurdle

DUBLIN (Reuter) — About 12 horses are expected to contest the Irish sweeps hurdle, the richest hurdle race in the British Isles, which will be run over two miles at Fairyhouse near here Monday.

Henry Alpher's English-trained Persian War, three times winner of the Cheltenham hurdle, is 2-to-1 favorite in betting on the Irish race.

He will certainly go to the post fitter than at any time this season. The seven-year-old put up his best performance this season when finishing third in the Cheltenham trial hurdle Dec. 12.

Persian War was third in last year's Irish sweeps hurdle, won by Normandy.

Normandy recently strained a tendon and has been retired to stud.

In addition to Persian War, there are expected to be three other entries from England—Hunter's Treasure, Inishmaan and Sharavogue.

Hunter's Treasure has won seven of his eight races this season and shares second-favorite position in the betting with Inishmaan.

Inishmaan, trained by Fred Rimell who saddled Normandy last year, beat Persian War when winning the Fighting Fifth hurdle at Newcastle in October.

Among other Irish entries is American Raymond Guest's L'Escargot, who won the Cheltenham Gold Cup steeplechase last March.

Alcindor Outplays Wilt To Lead Bucks 113-88 Win

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain gave Lew Alcindor three feet, and the Milwaukee Bucks centre took advantage of it for 37 points Monday night.

"In the last game, Wilt would move back off of me," Alcindor said after the Bucks crushed Chamberlain and Los Angeles Lakers 113-88 in a National Basketball Association game. It was Monday's only NBA contest.

"Then, when I made my move, he would time his leap perfectly and block my shot," Lew said. "This time, I turned around to face him and made him play defence more honestly."

Alcindor outplayed the veteran Chamberlain in every aspect of the game except assists. Chamberlain finished with 25 points and had 14 rebounds to Alcindor's 16. The Milwaukee sophomore also blocked four shots while Chamberlain knocked down two would-be Milwaukee baskets.

While Alcindor was winning his battle with Chamberlain, two other superstars were playing head-to-head, and again Milwaukee came out on top.

Oscar Robertson tallied 19 points, matching his season average, while holding the Lakers' Jerry West to a similar amount. West was averaging 28.2 points a game going into the contest.

Last Year's Award Winner Sends Eight On Russian Tour

MONTREAL (CP) — An award won last year by Fred Oberlander has been turned into a Russian tour for eight Canadian junior wrestlers.

Oberlander, chairman of the Canadian Amateur Wrestling Association, was one of three "sports executive of the year" award winners in a 1968 contest sponsored by Air Canada. His prize was 10 tickets to anywhere in the world.

Oberlander, from Montreal, was in Edmonton at the time he learned of the award, attending the world wrestling championships.

"Here I was with 10 tickets for any place in the world. I got talking to the Russian delegation and they suggested we send our top juniors for a series of 10 tournaments."

"The Russians agreed to pay all expenses once we reached their country, so I agreed to send our best juniors. The number of tickets available has been cut to eight, since I used two for my executives to attend a meeting of the Canadian association in Calgary."

Barry Nye, manager-coach of the team, said the heavy-weight and 130-pound class will be dropped for the Russian tour.

British Runner Getting Worse Before Stomach Cancer Operation

MUNICH, West Germany (Reuter) — British Olympic runner Lillian Board, in critical condition with stomach cancer, was taken to Munich late Monday night after suffering a perforated small intestine.

Miss Board, who has been undergoing treatment for several weeks under Dr. Josef Issels at Rottach-Egern, may have an operation today.

She was moved on instructions from Dr. Issels, who normally transfers patients from his clinic to other clinics or hospitals for operations.

The 22-year-old British runner, silver medalist in the 1968 Olympics in Mexico City, suffered the perforation early Monday night.

Speaking from Rottach-Egern, Dr. Issels said her condition had deteriorated and he thought it best that she be transferred to the Chirurgie clinic in Munich.

Finding Seat A Tough Job

TORONTO (CP) — Trying to find a seat to watch any of the 16 sports events of the first Ontario Winter Games next week in the borough of Etobicoke may be tough.

Officials said Monday they have seating facilities at the 15 Games sites—10 school auditoriums, two arenas and Centennial Park—to handle about 10,000 persons a day.

"Any overflow will just have to be turned away," said John Gillies, spokesman for the Ontario government which is staging the competition at a cost of between $50,000 to $75,000.

More than 1,200 athletes from 11 Ontario regions are participating in the four-day event starting Sunday to select the 200-member team to represent the province at the Canada Winter Games Feb. 11-22 in Saskatoon.

McPeak Offered Lion Job

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Province says Bill McPeak, offensive line coach with Detroit Lions of the National Football League, has been offered the job as executive general manager of the British Columbia Lions of the Canadian Football League.

It quotes McPeak as saying he was "very much interested" in the offer to fill the newly-created post with the club. He played for Pittsburgh Steelers between 1949 and 1957 and coached Washington Redskins from 1961 to 1964.

Sports columnist Eric Whitehead says the club had considered hiring Eagle Keys, coach of Saskatchewan Roughriders, to replace Jackie Parker, Lions' coach, who would then become executive general manager, but this backfired.

Lithuanian's Defection Bid Stirs Row In U.S. Coast Guard

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two senior U.S. Coast Guard officers have taken retirement rather than face courts martial for their part in the abortive defection attempt of a Lithuanian sailor.

But the officers, Rear-Admiral William Ellis, 56, and Capt. Fletcher Brown, 50, face a congressional committee next Tuesday in the case of would-be defector Simas I. Kudirka.

Russian seamen forcibly pulled Kudirka aboard their adjacent vessel after he jumped to the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant in U.S. territorial waters off Martha's Vineyard, Mass., last month.

Representative Wyane L. Hays called outrageous a decision Monday by Transportation Secretary John Volpe to let the officers retire and thus evade court martial proceedings.

The Ohio Democrat said he wants Ellis and Brown to appear before his House of Representatives foreign operations subcommittee to "find out what makes them think like this."

Brown was acting commander of the 1st Coast Guard District in Boston and Ellis, the commander, was on sick leave when Kudirka attempted defection.

OFFICERS CRITICIZED

A report of a formal coast guard investigation sharply criticizes the two officers and also declares the state department "did not furnish adequate, helpful or timely advice to deal properly with this defection."

Admiral C. R. Bender, the coast guard commandant, issued findings based on the report that called for court martialing both men on charges of dereliction.

But Bender said he would drop the charges if the pair retired immediately.

Canada Keeps Telling U.K. Don't Sell S. Africa Arms

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian government has examined data on the Soviet naval buildup in the Indian Ocean and concluded it does not justify the risk to Commonwealth unity involved in any British decision to sell arms to South Africa.

That, say authoritative sources, is a fair inference to be drawn from continuing differences between Prime Minister Trudeau and British Prime Minister Edward Heath on the arms issue.

Before his meeting with Mr. Heath here last week, Mr. Trudeau was given an intelligence appraisal of the Indian Ocean situation prepared in the Canadian defence department.

Mr. Heath's government has cited the Soviet naval threat in the ocean and on the Cape of Good Hope shipping route around the tip of South Africa as a valid reason for lifting Britain's six-year-old embargo on arms shipments to the white-supremacist republic.

It has not yet taken a final decision, however.

In a lengthy discussion the British leader and Mr. Trudeau failed to resolve their differences. Some sources said they didn't even "dent" them.

Canadian officials refuse even to hint at what was in the intelligence report. But it is believed in line with published accounts, which tell of a Soviet force of eight to 14 fighting and support ships, and growing.

The British government itself has spoken of a Soviet Indian Ocean fleet consisting of a cruiser, two destroyers, two submarines and associated vessels. At least one of the warships is believed to carry guided missiles.

The fleet is assumed to be augmented by Soviet fishing trawlers with intelligence-gathering equipment.

Britain sees the Soviet presence as a direct threat to its lifeline to the Persian Gulf and the Far East. As Mr. Heath told his Ottawa press conference, the Cape route around the tip of South Africa handles more than one-quarter by value of all Britain's seaborne trade, and a large part of this volume is oil.

The British see the buildup as part of a worldwide maritime surge by the Soviet Union, challenging Western domination in many areas, most notably the Mediterranean.

Mr. Heath maintains that

Pope 'Was Hit' During Attack

BOLOGNA, Italy (Reuter) — Bolivian painter Benjamin Mendoza succeeded in wounding Pope Paul at Manila airport last month, the Bologna newspaper Resto Del Carlino said today.

In an article written from the Vatican, the Conservative newspaper claimed that Mendoza had struck the Pope twice on the neck, lightly wounding him.

Only the starch of the Pope's collar and the bluntness of the knife had prevented the wound from being more serious, it said.

The Vatican has constantly denied that Pope Paul was injured during the incident Nov. 27, and a first communique issued in Manila said that he had not even noticed what was happening.

But the Resto Del Carlino said that a study of television film of the incident showed the Pope was pushed violently backward and would have fallen if he had not bumped into Imelda Marcos, wife of the president of the Philippines.

The article said the official account of the incident, which said that Mendoza never came close to the Pope, was contradicted by the drops of blood which were clearly seen on the Pope's sleeve.

The official account said the blood came from Mendoza, who was slightly wounded during his capture.

The article also quoted Mendoza as saying in court in Manila, where he is charged with attempted murder: "I did not manage to kill the Pope, but I'm very happy that I wounded him."

Reds Stirred Up Troubles, Spanish Vice-President Says

MADRID (AP) — Vice-President Luis Carrero Blanco blamed the Communists Monday night for recent anti-government activity in Spain and said the armed forces would be strengthened to combat it.

Carrero Blanco told the Cortes, Spain's parliament, that the Basque terrorist organization ETA uses "the apparent political affiliation of Basque separatism to cover the reality of its true function—terrorism in the service of communism."

He said the Spanish economy now is strong enough to permit reorganization and reinforcement of the armed forces and that the chiefs of staff of the army, the air force and the navy are studying plans to perfect their armament and training. He did not elaborate.

The vice-president's speech was part of a government campaign to deal with the crisis resulting from the trial in Burgos of 16 Basque separatists charged with terrorism and murder. The prosecution has asked the death penalty for six of the defendants accused of killing a political police chief and prison terms totalling 724 years for all.

In hopes that the holiday season will take the steam out of the protests, the military court is delaying its verdict until after Christmas.

Problem Of Salmon Surplus Worries Washington State

OLYMPIA, Wash. (AP) — sale occurred in early October, Robison said, with a record coho run moving through state waters, dealers cut their prices early because of the huge supply.

Because of an initiative approved by voters in 1935, the late run because inaccessible to purse seiners, he said.

Beginning Oct. 5, only gill netters and trollers are allowed to fish south of a line running roughly from Angeles Point to Whidbey Island, automatically cutting down on the number of boats to harvest the surplus, said Robison.

The initiative also allows fishermen south of the line to work only five days a week until Nov. 30.

"We open everything up as much as the law allows, but even so, fish in that area can't all be harvested and in a big run the dealers can't handle the load," Robison said.

"The other place where we're hurt is the fishing preserves, but opening those to commercial boats brings us a 'people problem.'"

Washington marketed almost 3.4 million pounds of salmon this year, 2 million pounds usable only for pet food, Oregon officials say they sold about 1.2 million pounds.

"We only sell the extra fish after we are assured of a full capacity egg take and know the streams are being spawned to their maximum limit," Robison said.

"After that, we are required to give our surplus fish to state institutions, the welfare department and Indians."

FISH GIVEN AWAY

This year, Washington gave away about 225,000 pounds of fish, then sold the rest at 22 cents a pound for salmon usable for food, and 4.1 cents a pound for fish unfit for human consumption, Robison said.

The money is used to buy food for hatchery fish and improve fish rearing facilities.

"The fishermen say we are impacting the price, but I doubt it," he said.

"Trollers negotiate their price before the season begins, and net fishermen are selling their fish and getting their prices before we get any in the market."

The biggest part of the state

More specifically, the "people problem" consists of the state's sports fishermen who are allowed to fish the preserves, which include most of the Olympic Peninsula north coast, Hood Canal, areas in the San Juans and Elliot Bay.

The department director has the authority, Robison said, to temporarily allow commercial fishermen in those areas, but in the face of strong sports fishing pressure, he said, to do so could be catastrophic.

Meanwhile, Robison said, state hatcheries will be cranking out about 3.1 million pounds of little fish in 1971 after planting 2.7 million pounds this year. That means hatchery surpluses will increase in future runs, he said.

The Willow Inn, 235 Queensway, is one of Kelowna's landmarks and has been in operation for a number of years. Starting as a tea house, the Inn soon expanded, with a large expansion program going underway in 1954 when licensed premises were allowed.

Prior to that time, Kelowna was a dry town, says manager T. L. Mooney.

Since then the hotel has been renovated and updated, with a major renovation job completed earlier this year.

The 32-room hotel houses a tavern, a lounge, a dining room and coffee shop, but has no banquet facilities.

In addition, Greyhound has its bus depot at the site, as has a barbershop.

Thirty employees are on staff, with an additional 10 to 12 hired for the summer.

Seating capacity in the dining lounge is 35, with 40 more seats in the coffee shop.

Food is excellent and prices reasonable. Rooms are maintained by the housekeeping staff.

TO YOUR GOOD HEALTH

She Ponders Reason For 'Sneaky' Disease

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: Diabetes is called the sneaky disease, and I guess that is just what it is—a sneaky disease. Could it be brought on by medicines which I am taking, and am told I must take for the rest of my life, after having a heart attack?

I am going through a very traumatic time, what with losing many relatives and friends, to say nothing of having a pregnant unmarried granddaughter whom I now have on my hands. It is hard to stop being emotionally involved when these things happen in such rapid succession.

I am told I am a borderline diabetic and was given a diet to follow.—M. D. E.

Yes, it's a sneaky disease, and rarely comes on suddenly, the exception being in children or adolescents who can develop severe diabetes—although even in them, I suspect that signs could be discovered early if only some clue appeared to lead us to look for them.

The fact is that the cause of diabetes is not known. Obesity tends to bring on diabetes—particularly if the person has a tendency toward that disease to start with. Both physical and emotional trauma appear to have a similar effect—bringing potential diabetes into being, or aggravating it.

Medicines such as you are taking for your heart will not cause or otherwise influence the diabetes. Neither will tranquilizers.

A good many people who have heart attacks are found to have diabetes of which they were unaware, and there is evidence that diabetes, particularly untreated diabetes, plays some role in making people more likely to have heart trouble—one of many good reasons why we must be on our guard against this sneaky disease.

You are, obviously, under a considerable emotional burden, but I can offer you this solace for what it is worth: if you were merely given a diet to follow, your physician must have found you as having mild diabetes which can be kept under control without the use of medication or insulin in addition. Is it essential that you follow the diet, though.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: An "action line" column which answers questions for the public had a letter asking about silicone injections for the breast. The answer was that silicone was illegal but there was something new out, and to "ask her doctor." Can you tell us what it is or what type of doctor would do it?—Mrs. O. W.

The answer was correct in that silicone injections for that purpose are not sanctioned; I would have no idea what was meant by "something new." Plastic surgeons can implant silicone-filled sacks to build up the breasts, but that isn't exactly "new." The sacks keep the silicone from changing shape and prevent it from coming in direct contact with the fatty breast tissue. That is an accepted procedure, but it does, obviously, involve a surgical operation. Silicone for medical use is under investigation but is not ready for use.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I am deeply worried about the threat of pesticides, DDT and others. How much residue are we getting on fruits and vegetables from our local markets? Do the pesticides permeate the whole apple or carrot or tomato, or can they be thoroughly washed off?—Mrs. G. W.

The pesticides are sprayed on, and not absorbed, so thorough washing will keep fruits and vegetables safe.

YOUR HOROSCOPE

July 24 to Aug. 23 (Leo) — With the help of associates, chances for accomplishment increase.

Aug. 24 to Sept. 23 (Virgo) — Financial matters will probably be the center of your interests now.

Sept. 24 to Oct. 23 (Libra) — Don't ask favors of superiors: They are not likely to be granted.

Oct. 24 to Nov. 22 (Scorpio) — Delve into the background a bit: You may come up with some useful information.

Nov. 23 to Dec. 21 (Sagittarius) — A day of great activity, but don't let your enthusiasm lead you to extremes.

Dec. 22 to Jan. 20 (Capricorn) — Postpone giving a definite answer in a financial situation. Wait a week.

Jan. 21 to Feb. 19 (Aquarius) — An excellent day for promoting a new idea or enterprise.

Feb. 20 to Mar. 20 (Pisces) — A happier day for romance and pleasure than for business matters.

Astroprospects — Mixed stellar influences. Fiscal matters and business negotiations conducted with persons of good repute should work out extremely well, but have no dealings with anyone whose motives are open to question. Natives of some Signs could be deceptive in their approaches.

Change In Bankruptcy Laws May Occur At Prime Time

By IRVING C. WHYNOT

Canadian Press Business Editor

The move to overhaul bankruptcy legislation comes at a time when the rate of business failures in Canada is starting to climb.

Latest figures from Dominion Bureau of Statistics show 2,401 failures for the first three quarters of the year—up about 18 per cent from 1969—with total liabilities of $185 million.

For the same period in 1969 there were 2,027 failures with liabilities of $148 million.

Assuming the same rate of increase for the remainder of the year, that means there will be more than 3,100 failures this year with liabilities of about $250 million.

That compares with a total for all of 1969 of 2,693 failures and liabilities of $210 million, and 1968 totals of 2,516 failures and $180 million in liabilities.

Dun and Bradstreet of Canada Ltd. says in its annual report that general incompetence still is the main reason for failures, accounting for more than 60 per cent.

OTHER THINGS INVOLVED

Other prime factors were lack of experience in the line of work, lack of managerial experience and unbalanced experience.

A special report released Friday and accepted in general by the federal government will form the basis for major changes in bankruptcy laws.

The report said that in some cases officers and directors should be held personally liable for corporate debts, individuals should be able to obtain relief from onerous debt contracts and the state should no longer have first claim in collecting debts from a bankrupt.

The committee started work in 1968 when bankruptcies in Canada were running more than 3,000 a year. The peak was 3,877 in 1963.

The DBS figures, covering only bankruptcies filed under federal legislation, shows Quebec with about half of the failures so far this year—1,124 compared with 1,023 for the first three quarters of 1969.

Ontario was up sharply—to 911 from 833 for the corresponding period of 1969.

The suggestions of the special report, when enacted as legislation, will affect everyone from small debtors to corporate directors.

Ron Bastford, minister of consumer and corporate affairs, told the Commons that legislation will be introduced as soon as possible.

The aim, the report said, is for "a new bankruptcy and insolvency statute that would provide for an integrated and comprehensive bankruptcy system, devised to suit the needs of our time."

U.S. Lowers Voting Age

WASHINGTON (CP) — The United States Supreme Court approved Monday the lowering of the voting age to 18 from 21 on all U.S. national elections.

But it said that Congress had no legal right to order states to reduce the voting age for their elections.

The court was ruling on the 1970 Federal Voting Rights Law. It also said that literacy tests required in connection with elections must be suspended for five years.

The law had lowered the voting age to 18 for all elections—national, state and local—beginning Jan. 1.

Oregon and Texas had sued in the court against enforcement of the 18-year-old provision, Arizona had fought the literacy test ban.

The states maintain the law takes away from them powers reserved to the states by the constitution to control their own elections.

British System Of Pay Hikes May Be Needed By Canada's MPs

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament may have to adopt the new British system if it ever wants to rid itself of the embarrassment of approving its own pay increases.

The independent committee on parliamentary salaries and expenses, whose report was made public recently, declined to accept the chief task given it: To recommend a method of setting MPs' salaries regularly in future.

The committee instead recommended that another committee have a look at this problem in the next Parliament.

This comes close to the system recently adopted at Westminster. An independent commission to review MPs' salaries in each Parliament—that is, every four years or so—must make recommendations which would receive almost automatic approval.

Peachland Chamber To Elect New Officers In January

PEACHLAND (Special)—The Peachland and District Chamber of Commerce's annual meeting and election of officers will be held over until January it was decided at the meeting held recently. The decision was taken even though a nominating committee had been appointed and had obtained a full slate of officers.

The resignation of the president, Robert Braucht, who last week had agreed to stand for re-election for a further term, left the office open. Mr. Braucht, who has business interests in Alberta, notified the committee that unforeseen circumstances had arisen which would keep him in Alberta until the spring.

As no one in attendance at the meeting would consider the presidency, the nomination committee was instructed to canvass the membership to fill this position.

Appointed chairman for the meeting was W. L. Lawrence, who welcomed and introduced guests and potential members to the meeting. Marion Jenn, Robert Freels, Robert Johnston, Roy Freeman and Fred Grey.

Kurt Domi stated it was gratifying to see these new people and that it showed that a membership drive could be successful.

He pointed out promotional material is needed and that a brief history of the community work done by the chamber should be compiled, to bring to the public notice that membership is not limited to business people but all residents who have an interest in the community and its development. It was decided to get started on this suggestion early in 1971.

Members brought up again the lack of signs at the access road and along Highway 97 adjacent to the new Peachland Elementary School. It was decided to once again contact the highways department in Kelowna and express the chamber's concern at the lack of the department's concern for the safety of Peachland children. Neil Witt was appointed to head a committee to look into this matter by contacting School District 23 and the municipal council.

Mr. Lawrence asked Don Wilson, chairman of the Peachland Centennial 71 committee, to report on Centennial activities. Mr. Wilson stated that final plans for the project have not yet been obtained but that the committee has centennial books, calendars and medallions for sale now.

The Peachland Youth Club is selling the calendars with the Riding Club looking after the books.

Further to centennial year Mrs. J. K. Todd announced that an adult centennial choir will be formed in the new year under the direction of Mrs. R. D. Mitchell, and that all residents interested in joining are asked to phone Mrs. Mitchell.

Discussion was held on fund raising activities and a community Klondike Night was discussed. Various members offered to obtain more particulars as to the running of such a function and will report back to the next meeting.

It was decided to make the January meeting election of officers with the February meeting slated as a dinner meeting and installation night.

The chamber was asked if it would be willing to help a senior citizens group to organize in the community. Most of the members felt such a group would be beneficial and that once formed the chamber could arrange tours and possible entertainment.

Such organization would fall under the scope of the Peachland Parks and Recreation Commission who could provide facilities.

Neil Witt and Kurt Domi will attend the next meeting of the parks and recreation commission to discuss this matter and what help could be given by the chamber.

Entertaining Oceola Concert Held At Winfield Saturday

WINFIELD — Barry Patterson was master of ceremonies at a delightful Christmas concert held at the George Elliot Secondary School Saturday evening.

The gymnasium was decorated with an almost real fireplace, sparkling Christmas tree and a star of Bethlehem shining down from above.

This array made a perfect setting for the children from Oyama Elementary, tutored by Carolyn Loewen and Mrs. A. Monod.

Their Rudolph the Red Nosed Reindeer and Winter Wonderland skits were adorable.

Mrs. E. Erskine of the Wood Lake Elementary School led the choir, entertaining with a number of Christmas songs. Jan Warners, Sigrid Ann Thors, Sue Myer and Dr. R. Woodley, a string quartet, and members of the Okanagan Symphony played two melodies and the Oceola Choral Group led by Barry Patterson sang "Noel" and a rendition of "Silent Night."

The George Elliot School band and the Grade 8 band played a number of Christmas selections with audience participation.

The children then sat in a semi-circle on the floor and Mr. Patterson sat with them and sang the lovely lullaby.

ACCIDENT VERDICT
MISSION (CP) — Death of George Hoy, 48, of Richmond has been ruled accidental by a coroner's jury. Hoy disappeared on a hunting trip and his body was found Nov. 10 at the base of a cliff along the Stave River. A pathologist's report said he died of a neck injury.
